SUMNER

November 18th, Alpha Varney carried a party of ladies to Ramford to attend the inspection of the Women's Relief Corps of which Mrs. Alice Redding is Chief Inspector. The party consisted of Mrs. Elva Parrar, Mrs. Corry Bonney,
Mrs. Robert Millett and Miss Helen Bonney. Mrs. Robert Millett, while on the train, made the remark that she much preferred Alpha Varney as a chauffeur to anyone she had in mind. Mr. and Mrs.
David Adams went with their Ford coupe, Clifford Abbott carried more members, while Vernon Redding carried a load. All enjoyed a chicken pie supper and Sumner was well represented and a good time was enjoyed by all. The men attended the pictures.

Alpha Varney is the possessor of a long spring sleigh, having traded a light riding wagon with Emerson Bartlett for same.
Charlie Farrar just dropped the writer
one dollar in exchange for a six months subscription to the Advertiser, Charlie said it is like the cigarette habit—can't get along without it.

Walter Newell, that trapper who is yet in his teens and is looking ahead to a prosperous future, recently caught a thirty inch mink which he sold to Harlan Redding for twenty-five dollars. Lionel Bartlett caught a nice coon the other night.

Several farmers still hauling water.
Alpha Varney, Emerson Bartlett and son, Jerry, were at Chet McAllister's place at North Paris, Saturday morning. Emerson bought a small show while there.
Emerson Bartlett and Jerry called on George Spaulding, Saturday evening, and both enjoyed looking over his herd of many thoroughbred cattle, varying from the Jerseys predominating and all very plainly show both good feed and grooming from George and his assistant herds-man, Walter Newell, who has been with George for several years. This barn is so well filled that it is hard work to shut the door.

Charlie Farrar traded horses again recently, this time with Alf Fales.
A little more snow early Monday morning, just enough for deer tracking and the boys are all out again, not much dog-ging so far.

At the request of Mrs. Emerson Bartlett, and several other ladies, I am sending in a list of canned goods that have been put up this season by Mrs. Bartlett, all in glass jars:

117 qts. of peas
25 two quart jars of crab apple
16 pt. jars of cranberries
29 jars of blueberries
51 qt. jars of applesauce
3 qt. jars of watermelon rind preserves
8 qt. jars of sweet apple
6 qt. jars of grape marmalade
2 qt. jars of quince
6 pt. jars of green tomato preserves
28 pt. jars of ripe tomato preserves
7 pt. jars of pickles
2 qt. jars of grape juice
42 pt. jars of apple jelly
20 pt. jars of cranberry jelly
20 pt. jars of grape jelly
20 pt. jars of plum jelly
105 qt. jars of ripe tomatoes
45 qt. jars of sweet corn
47 qt. jars of shell beans
25 qt. jars of string beans
25 qt. jars of corn
2 qt. jars of carrot
2 qt. jars of beet pickles
2 qt. jars of mustard
15 qt. jars of chicken
15 qt. jars of mince-meat
10 qt. jars of tomato pickle
10 qt. jars of tomato catsup
10 qt. jars of chili sauce
6 pt. jars of corn relish
11 pt. jars of mustard pickle
12 pt. jars of horseradish
11 qt. jars of seed cucumber pickles
10 qt. jars of small cucumber pickles
Total of above assortment represents one thousand three hundred and two jars and tumblers.

Harry Twitchell and staff were in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison renewed his acquaintance. He says he thinks having plenty of water for house use and that of his neighbors are obliged to have been obliged to time.

The big woods is solved. It has been a long time since the woods have been so quiet. The deer have been so tame that they have been carrying their car traps that didn't get the outfit. After the hunt, curiosity prompted the hunter to look into the trap. He found the deer there, but true there was no deer. The hunter was disappointed. The deer had been collected the soiled excitement that had been mixed with the hunt. The boys are accused of being to do while waiting to start. Anyhow this was the case.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLAY

The most noticeable among our New England lyrical poets, today, published her first and finest poem in 1917. "Renascence" was the poem of the year and an indication that Miss Millay would rank as a poet of prime importance among the contemporaries. The original simplicity of the beginning, the gradual rise in tone and quality to the expression of deep emotion and spirituality, gave the whole poem a profundity and passion that was sublime in thought. Yet it is really just a girl's realization of the unity in all the universe, of the oneness of all things. The poet becomes conscious of every living thing in the world; everything has a meaning to her and all things move her. She feels the suffering of a starved man in Capri, and the troubles and heartbreaks and woe of all people are hers to share. She sees and feels God in all nature. She touches God in the breath of the breeze and in the trodden grass. This reminds one a bit of the philosophy of Emerson—God in nature and all things. This first poem of Miss Millay's is the most beautiful that she has yet written, and though in "God's World" she attains a spiritual passion like that of "Renascence", none other of the poems contain the depth and beauty of these two.

In "A Few Figs from Thistles" Miss Millay seems to have turned entirely away from her original calling to have given over her love of Reality and Truth for a more filmy, a more modern tone. There are none of the "Figs" that can be classed with "Renascence"; none have really any depth of thought. Here is the "First Fig":

My candle burns at both ends; It will not last, but oh, my friends, It gives a lovely light!

And here is the "Second Fig": Safe upon the solid rock the ugly lilies stand; Come and see my shining palace built upon the sand.

There is nothing very deep about these! They are more in the spirit of revolt than written with a gladness and joy for the things of the world. It would seem on the whole that all the poems in this volume are of the same tone—modern and revolting! And so we don't get the beauty and emotion that we thought was in Miss Millay. But the poem called "Portrait of a Neighbor" is a little richer than some of the others in the book.

Portrait by a Neighbor Before she has her hair swept By her dishes there, Any day you'll find her leaning in the night, It's long after midnight, Her key's in the lock, And you never see her chimney smoke. But just ten o'clock she dies in her garden With a shovel and spoon, She weeds her busy lot, By the light of the moon.

She walks up the wall, Like a woman in a dream, She forgets she's borrowed butter, And pays you back with a smile.

Her lawn looks like a meadow, And if she moves the place She haunts the clover stems, And the Queen Anne's lace!

There is something beneath the surface of this poem. And we all can find it in among our friends somewhere! In "The Buck in the Snow" Miss Millay has not yet returned to the beauty and power of the first poems, though many of the pieces are fine. I am particularly fond of the title poem "The Buck in the Snow" and it will appeal to nature lovers and to those who do not care for the hunt. Miss Millay's collaboration with Deems Taylor in "The King's Henchman" has placed her in the poemers of high rank in the contemporary writers. Some of Miss Millay's poems, of a lighter nature, have been brought together in a volume to make a suitable book of children's poems. This particular book is light, snappy, modern verse you have it in Miss Millay's more recent work. If you care more for beautiful lyricism and spiritual passion you must turn back to "Renascence and Other Poems."

HOTEL RUMFORD BURNED

Fire started Sunday night at 11:15 in the kitchen of Hotel Rumford in Rumford, which caused damages estimated at $200,000. Help was sent from Mexico, Lewiston and Auburn. No lives were lost and there were no serious accidents.

Hotel Rumford is a wood and brick structure, four stories high, at Congress, Exchange and Canal Streets. The ground floor is occupied by stores and the plant of the Rumford Falls Times, the three upper floors being devoted to the hotel.

The building was owned by Richard S. Peterson, who ran the hotel. The hotel portion was practically destroyed, the lower floors were damaged by smoke and water. Other nearby buildings were damaged more or less by fire, smoke and water.

Fred York, 72, of Auburn, night clerk in the hotel, smelled smoke shortly after 11 o'clock and started an investigation. On opening the door off the kitchen, he was met by a sheet of flame. He succeeded in closing the door, rushed back to the office and turned in an alarm from the fire signal box there. Immediately he got about arousing inmates of the house, 20 guests, and other employees.

The tiny whitish-gray insects which often scurry across the pages when old, musty books are opened are known as "booklice" but they do not attack man as do true lice and are therefore usually as no worry.

These pests (as they are known entomologically) are generally found in dark, damp rooms that have been closed, and a thorough drying, airing, and cleaning is all that is necessary to destroy them. They sometimes appear in large numbers in early fall, but die off when gold weather comes.

The United States Bureau of Standards attempts to standardize almost every thing, but there is little likelihood that it will ever have the courage to tackle the waistline.—Louisville Times.

Where the Christmas Club Shines

Distribution of Christmas Money

Norway National Bank and Norway Savings Bank will send out checks on December 2, amounting to $25,000. This sum represents the weekly savings plus accrued interest of the Christmas Club members and is quite a tidy sum for the local community.

The Christmas Club idea was first put into practice at the banks but a few years ago. It was a success on the start and this department for weekly savings has grown rapidly.

A lump sum coming to families at the opportune time when bills may be a little pressing and Christmas season just around the corner, is a Godsend and doubly appreciated. Not only does the income help the wage earners over a tight place, but the good news is passed along to the community where the merchants and traders, tax collector and landlords, churches and charities receive benefits from this distribution.

In many cases the check is a gift—it represents money saved with no effort, which otherwise might have been squandered. Clubs for next year will start soon at the banks.

The inception of the Christmas Club idea, nineteen years ago, anticipated the need of providing an easy, simple and practical method of systematically accumulating funds for the specific purpose of Christmas needs. Its sponsors, however, in the creation of the plan, were careful of the opportunity it would bring to wage-earners of systematic permanent savings by encouraging small weekly deposits, and the history of the Christmas Club plan would indicate that it has been a real contribution to economic progress in this accomplishment and in thrift development.

Starting about the 1st of December, and before the middle of January, these accounts are opened at various financial institutions and the members select the class of payments best suited to their individual requirements, and based upon the total accumulation desired the following Christmas Season. Payments continue for the ensuing fifty weeks. There are no fines, no dues, and all the money is returned by the bank in one lump sum just before Christmas.

Through the country six hundred million dollars will be distributed to 9,000,000 members of the Christmas Club by more than 8,000 banks and financial institutions. This is ten per cent in excess of last year.

In New England, Maine stands third with a total of $4,462,800 led only by Massachusetts and Connecticut. Little Rhode Island is a close fourth. Total for New England is $95,150,400, which is third position in the classified eight group of states. The Middle Atlantic group captures first place and East North Central second.

Based on a direct-by-mail inquiry, Herbert F. Rowell, President of Christmas Club, estimates the country's Christmas saving will be spent as follows:

Christmas purchases.....$225,000,000
Permanent Savings & Investment.....125,000,000
Year end commitments.....100,000,000
Insurance premiums.....85,000,000

Taxes.....27,000,000

Charity.....6,000,000

DON SEITZ ON RELIGIOUS PRESS

From the Epworth Herald.

Contrasted with the religious newspapers that flourished before the days of the flashy five-cent weeklies, and which had for competitors story papers like the New York Ledger, for which Henry Ward Beecher wrote a novel called "Norwood" that gave it a great lift in circulation, the church papers fail to do much, if anything, to supply family reading. That is they no longer furnish pleasant fiction, engaging verse, or carry a "children's corner."

To one brought up on the other sort as I was, in a clergyman's family, this seems to be a mental and moral loss as well. Perhaps there are no longer any "chimney corners" such as those in which young people sat to read with delight the departments that were allotted to them in the religious press. Possibly they would not read the sort of matter that was then printed for them. Possibly the squawking movies and the screeching radio have killed the desire for the quiet hour and the delicate intellectual refreshment once afforded. Yet I am inclined to think differently, and to believe that the papers would find a wider welcome in American households if they were to afford some antidote for the dirt and noise now predominant. Surely sweetness and light cannot be entirely out of date. Perhaps I might add that the papers would be better welcomed if the editors thought more about their readers and less about the clergy or what the bishop was doing.

By this I am recording myself as asserting that they fail to penetrate into the home by homely appeals. Surely the enormous membership of the churches which grows steadily in spite of the secular charge that they are dying out, may be revitalized through the religious press while the latter greatly enlarges its usefulness by taking proper advantage of its field.

The Sunday School publications still afford an enormous service. To them it must be admitted that the Sunday School fails to make the appeal it did before the Sabbath Day lost its sacredness through the money-making facilities afforded greedy amusement vendors by its violation.

The field of the religious press, which it very generally neglects, is that of affording reading matter of the right sort to the church families, who should find in it an amount of interest and information that will offset the flood of trash, printed, pictured, and proclaimed through the pure sale of human, that now vitiate American thought and undermines its ideals.

The church, by itself, and dependent alone on the energies of the pastor, cannot withstand this flooding by the mercenary. He needs the help of the religious press, not alone in sustaining the principles of his faith, but in sweetening the moral atmosphere.

In most communities the attendance at the movie houses is far in excess of the attendance at the churches, but the volume of printed matter that is fictional does not greatly exceed that of the religious output. They are much nearer a level on the competition. To them is given the opportunity to do the greatest service for Christianity and right living, if they will only rise to the task. It is not a light one, but none calls more loudly for the undertaking.

It cannot be that all Americans wish forever to be fed with trash or to spend their time in unreflecting diversion, made to reach the lowest forms of human degradation. There must be, and no doubt is already existent, a considerable distaste for the sort of stuff for which the people pay. Movie houses have been capitalized up beyond the billion mark. Radio is an enormous financial factor. Colossal sums are taken from the public pocket to justify their investments. They give signs of taxing the people beyond their strength. The religious press is not organized on a mercenary basis; its aim is to present the high and not the low. It does not degrade itself for profit. It is not fully measure up to its mission the reasons are not discreditable. It can redeem itself at any time by exertion in the right direction. It should get up steam and do its full duty. The readers are ready. And many more readers are waiting to be added.

WHAT UNCLE LEM SAYS

A writer in one of the Portland papers is giving his views as to how the opposition party could best be reconstructed, and made a power in the land. He does not appear to have touched the marrow of the case. So far as national politics are concerned, it must be apparent to thinking minds that there is precious little difference between the two great parties. Can anyone really tell what the difference is? The Westerners of both, as the squabble over the tariff in Congress has shown, want a high one for the industries and productions of their section. The Southerners, almost wholly of the opposition, no longer advocate free trade, but desire, this is bad for large numbers to have their products and industries protected, while the Easterners all alike as ever cling to the Shiloh of protection. So at last is seen by the dull eyes of men. W. S. Hancock's statement which lost him the Presidency in 1880, that the tariff was a local question—is absolutely true.

The administrations since the war of the two opposition presidents were as national in their character as Lincoln's and McKinley's. The old fact is that with any able and clean man of either party, at the head of the government, the best of the country and the prosperity of the people would not suffer and the "general welfare" would be pretty much the same. It really narrows right down to a question of men.

It is unfortunate in Maine, for instance, that the dominant party is so largely in the majority. A nomination in the primaries of it is generally equivalent to an election. This is bad for large numbers of unlit and unworthy men thus get into office. There seems to be no necessity for this state of affairs. There is one question if made a party issue with the right leaders that would slice off a big piece from the majority party. And what is that question? It is that of economy in public affairs and the stoppage of waste. Taxes are a great burden because they are unnecessarily excessive. Not all the people are producers, and upon his class they fall with great weight. President Coolidge knew how this was, when he sounded the key-note in his recommendations to Congress, but little attention was paid to it.

The opposition in the state of Maine has its opportunity. Has it got sense enough to improve it? Town, county and state officials admit waste and the necessity for economy, but say that no one is making any fuss about it.

There is nothing that would so help the farmers as the reduction of their taxes and most of people care more about that today than for party sentiment and ties, but the men who rise to lead, in a movement of this nature, if such a thing is to come about, must be no old moss-bag politicians or tax boosters, who have been lying in the balance and found wanting like our quondam "farmers' friend," of former days, the Governor, but clean, able, and trustworthy men and women, who have a real interest for the welfare of the poorer people, beside the principal purpose of obtaining a seat in the United States Senate, or a diplomatic post at Japan. All such political place hunters have had abundant opportunity to do some real benefit to the suffering taxpayers, but they have lamentably failed. And who now is so simple as to further trust them? Talk is mighty cheap and it is high time that something was done other than professions of sympathy. It's time too, to begin to cut off expenses that people can comfortably get along without. Towns, counties, states and nation, like individuals, should live within their means.

As an aside, it may be said that it is a splendid idea also to employ our own teachers, trained nurses, etc.—in short, in our communities, to help our own children.

There is need of a great shaking up from top to bottom. Your Uncle Lemuel would be mighty glad to see the good work go on and will shout and assist in raising the zeppelins, but don't "choose" to be boosted into any office.

—Uncle Lem.

SOUTH RUMFORD

Kimball Given Reception—Edward Record Dead—First Meeting of Willing Workers.

A reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. William Kimball at their home, Tuesday evening of last week, in honor of their recent marriage. It was a surprise to them as they thought they were entertaining a quiet party. About fifty were present. They received many nice gifts, including a pair of blankets, two bouvier lamps, casserole, bath towels, a dozen silver teaspoons, silver soup ladle, and many pieces of glassware, lunch sets, etc., and nearly sixty dollars in money. Mrs. Gerald Curtis won first prize for ladies in whist and William Kimball first for men. Lee Elliott and Mrs. Earl Eldridge were given the consolation prizes. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. Helene Wilber was ill with tonsillitis last week and unable to teach. Two of her children, are also ill with it, and her little nephew, Leonard Murphy.

Not so large a crowd as usual at the Community Club dance at the Rumford Central Grange Hall Thursday evening of last week, but a small sum was cleared and every little helps towards building their club house. The next dance will be at the same place, Wednesday evening, December 4, and a whist party is planned for Saturday evening, Nov. 30, at W. A. and O. L. Wyman's.

Mrs. Eunice Putnam received news of the sudden death of her son-in-law, Edw. H. Record, at his home in Livermore Falls Thursday, November 21. About forty years ago he married Anna N. Putnam of Rumford, who survives him, with two sons, Alvin F. Record of Livermore Falls and Donald Record of Rochester, N. Y., and one daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Whitehouse of Lynchburg, Va., and three grandchildren. His age was 71 years, 10 months.

Mrs. Herbert Hall has been ill with a severe cold.

The Willing Workers of the Community Club held their first meeting of the winter season, Friday, November 22, with Mrs. Mary Wyman. A square meal for health was served at noon by farm bureau members, of scalloped macaroni and cheese, cabbage and pineapple salad, beet pickles, coffee, brown bread, cookies, apple pie, and coffee.

Afternoon, Mrs. Martha Spaulding was elected secretary, Mrs. Leah Wyman was re-elected president and Mrs. Greta Bryant was re-elected treasurer. Plans were made for this year's work and the next all day meeting will be held with Mrs. Martha Spaulding and her daughter, Mrs. William Kimball, Dec. 5. Fifteen towels were made. There were fourteen women and three children present.

Minerals Found

Albany, the Garden of Crystals.

Seventeen more gigantic beryl crystals have been brought to light at the Cummins farm mine in Albany, operated by Harry E. Bumpus of Auburn. This recent "find" makes twenty large crystals that have won the admiration of mineralogists, and places Maine at the head of the list for extensive beryl deposits.

Stanley L. Perham of West Paris is elated over this discovery for he handles all by-products from this mine which is operated for feldspar and quartz.

One of the new crystals, according to estimates weighs several tons, being fourteen feet long and probably seven or more feet in circumference and the pale green opaque variety.

A plan is under consideration and approved by Prof. W. B. Scott, head of the department of geology at Princeton University to have the crystals at the quarry, for in the opinion of Mr. Perham the frosts of winter may spoil the form of the mass.

Under present conditions the crystals block the entrance to the mine and must be moved in pieces unless another way into the excavation can be found. When scientists visited Albany, the past summer, three large crystals had been completely uncovered. Soon afterwards others were unearthed and now the ends of 14 others, equally gigantic, have been found.

They are on land owned by Allen Cummings of Bethel and Mrs. Harry E. Bumpus of Auburn, and operated on a long term lease by Mr. Bumpus. The feldspar produced is marketed by Harold C. Peckham of West Paris, member of the Maine Legislature, and his brother handles the beryl and other by-products. The crystals are within a short distance of the Valley Road, so called, between Lynnhaven and Bethel and the quarry has been visited by hundreds the past summer.

A THANKSGIVING SALAD

By all means serve a salad at Thanksgiving Day dinner. It is almost as essential as one on Christmas, for the average Thanksgiving meal is filled with acid-forming foods, and a good healthful alkaline salad will go a long way toward balancing the entire meal.

It is well to get away from the usual salad on this day, and serve something particularly appropriate. For instance, try "Turkey's Dinner Salad." On a bed of lettuce leaves place one-half an empty orange peel. Then proceed to fill this peel with bits of orange pulp, grapefruit pulp, and small squares of apple, pineapple and other firm fruit available. A few small raisins may be added. Place in the refrigerator to cool, and just before serving add a little mound of firmly whipped cream and a little syrup made by mixing three teaspoons of sugar with the juice of an orange and half a lemon. Place a small toy turkey or chicken, or make one from fruit if you can, so that it appears to be pecking from the dainties in the orange peel. You will find that this salad is novel and delicious as well.

"I wash, iron and carry coal and don't get tired since taking Vinol. Also, I have gained 18 pounds."—Mrs. S. Cortese.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious.

South Paris

Meeting of Community Club
The Community Club of South Paris held its last November meeting Tuesday afternoon at the I. O. O. F. Hall. Mrs. Carroll Wilson presided. After the usual business was disposed of, Mrs. Wilson urged us to keep the American Sunday by going to church. She said, "This Sunday before Thanksgiving has been set aside and named." The Women's Chorus sang Butterfly, and Marguerite Johnson played McDowell's Prelude in E Minor in a charming manner. Mrs. Johnson has a class in South Paris and in Portland two days a week. She is also studying with Anne Neely at the Maine Conservatory of Music.

Jane Finney Harlow of Portland, entertained for the afternoon. She is a graduate of Leland Powers, Boston, and is well known here in New England. Her fantasy, "My Lady of Dreams," has been put on at the Ladies' Literary Union, of which she is a member. Her selections were for the most part humorous, and done in a simple, self-effacing manner, thus vividly reflecting the story to her audience.

Noble Lord by Percival Wilde, Faithful Lovers, and a Morning in Kindergarten left her audience convulsed with laughter. The Modern Christian Prayer, brought to mind the troubles we have endured in soliciting for a church social. Readings from Edgar Guest were visitors. A Glee Club, My Glee and Hot Mine Pie, which was appropriate to the season. A warning to us else our dreams would be with. Her closing numbers were, "Sweetheart" by W. R. G. and "Cutting from Ben Hur," "The Angels' Visit to the Shepherds," very simply and effectively done. Her audience showed its appreciation.
